The secret in life

septiembre 02, 2025

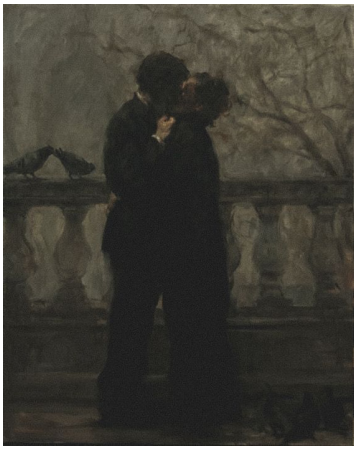
"The secret, Alice, is to surround yourself with people who make your heart smile. It's then, only then, that you'll find Wonderland"

There a lot of forms of love, like love for something, something as simple as playing a chord or writing a poem that takes less then 15 seconds to read can produce so many emotions, it isn't rare for me to feel such an immense feeling when I'm playing an improvisation with my band, and it isn't exactly love for the music itself, otherwise I would feel that whenever I'm listening to a song on spotify, by all means, what I'm listening to in the practice room while just playing what I feel like shouldn't be so... strong.

I guess It's a combination of a bunch of stuff happening at the same time, the music, the fact that I'm playing the drums so that the noise is pleasant, and -I think this might be the most important of all- the obvious feeling of playing, sharing something that you really, REALLY, enjoy to do, the fact that you know everyone is also enjoying themselves, and I truly think that me liking the people I'm playing with affects too, these people are fun to hang out with, so I know that they appreciate the time we spend together.

When I think about my future I'm never able to see it clearly, I love life, I love the fact that I never know what will happen tomorrow. Right now I'm in university, and I plan to get a job that will give me a fair amount of money without having to work too much, the reason for that is because I want to be able to have free time, I never want to stop playing music, I never want to stop doing the things I'm passionate about, I never want to stop learning new things, meeting new people, and understanding even more about people, and the world in on itself, and I never want to stop loving, whether that love go to something, or maybe someone.

I have seen many people my age already in a steady couple, already with their mind clear on what their future will be, what they want to work on, what friends will they have... I have also seen people in their 30's or even mid 20's, who spend most of their time on work, on working to pay for a car that they use solely to go to work, I have seen people in their 40's turning their lives around in order to finally do something that gives them joy.



I guess the point I'm trying to make is, I don't want that life, I don't want to wait until I have already exhausted myself with work, a marriage I hate, spending time with friends that I have long ago stopped being compatible with, just so that I can 'take it easy', I want to get every moment of my life worth, It doesn't matter if I don't have the best car, the best phone, as long as I have friends that are there for me when I need them, that push me to do new thing everyday instead of lowering me down, I will love that life until I die, I will appreciate it because I will know I'm one of the lucky ones, one of the truly happy ones.

I want to spend every fleeting moment of my existence doing something that will make me whole, and I will not settle for less
